Vincent L. Bradford, L.L. D., D. C. L., who died last week, has left a handsome estate, which, after the usual directions respecting the payment of debts and interment of the testator's remains, is devised as follows:

The real and personal property of every description whatsoever and wheresoever is left to the widow. Mrs. Juliet S. Bradford. to have sole and uncontrolled possession of every part and parcel thereof, and fully take, use, and enjoy the rents thereof for her own benefit and advantage.

Mrs. Bradford is also empowered to sall, mortgage, or otherwise dispose of any part of the estate, real or personal, at such time or times, upon such terms and in such manner as she may think proper, or to give any or all of it away without accountability or responsibilty to any one.

"I distinctly declare," says the testator,
that the happiness und comfort of my said wife is the first object which I wish to secure; and I have therefore given her free and unrestricted control over my said estate, both in her lifetime and by will after her death.

Should Mrs. Bradford approve, the property after her death is to be divided as hereinafter indicated, but if she should have disposed of any item of property, such specific bequest shall be inoperative,
and the will shail be read as if such bequest was not contained in it. Subject to these provisions the testator gives his library of law-books to Washington and Lee University. Virginna, to be added to the books for which he had previously given the institution money—the entire collection to be called the Vincent L. Bradford Law Library, to be maintained by the University to the extent of $400. All the expenses of transportation, with the collateral inheritance tax, are to be paid out of the funds belonging to the estate.

The testator's collection of paintings goes also to the Washington and Lee University, to be called by the name of the donor. Should either or both bequests be declined, the books a versity, to be called by the name of the donor. Should either or both bequests be declined, the books are to be sold and the proceeds added to other funds constituting the estate, and the pictures are to go to the nicce of Mr. Bradford, Mrs. Juliet S. An interesting competitive examination s being silently conducted in one of the northwestern suburbs of the town. Tree northwestern suburbs of the town. Tree life and what is called arboroulture is a subject of no small importance to the Londoner, but its conditions have stratgely changed in the course of the centures. When William III, bought Lord Nottingham's country villa for 18,000 guineas he followed up the purchase of Kensington House by much planting and landscape gardening. To that period are due many of the groves of oaks and of elms which now flourish in Kensington Gardens. But since the year 1689 we have discovered gas, and we have enormously increased the daily yield of London smoke. London air, sullied by perpetual soot-flakes, is not what it used to be. The oak and the ash and the elm do not strike their roots and spread their branches under the old conditions. Familiar trees droop and pine and wither. At the end of last autumn what wither. At the end of last autumn what Dr. Johnson would call "the considerable protuberance" of Primrose Hill was planted protuberance" of Primrose Hill was planted over with more than a thousand young trees. It was a larger experiment following a less important one of the previous autumn. Many varieties of trees were tried, from the poplar down to the hawthorn. Londoners may judge of the results for themselves, but it seems pretty clear that exuberant tree life under present conditions is limited to a few varieties.

A Child's Idea of Jail.

[Philadelphia Times.]

In the United States Circuit Court yesterday Mrs. Ellinore Russell alias Madame Worthington, a tall, stylishly-dressed woman, was remanded to the United States authorities of Wheeling, West Virginia, who charge that the woman used the mails there for fraudulant purposes. Mrs. Russell has only recently completed a six months' sentence in Easton, where she was convicted of defrauding poor shopgirts by pretending to be a teacher of the Mosaic art. The woman sat in Marshal Kerns's office all day, playing with her child, a beautiful little girl of five years, who lived with her mother in the Easton jail during her mother's incarceration. The little girl said:

"Mamma, don't let's sit here. Let's go home. I hope you're not going back to that borrid old fail, are you?"

REASSESMENT OF LANDS.

This subject having come up as unfinished business, Mr. Bailey was entitled to the floor, but he yielded to Mr. Atkinson, who offered as a substitute for Mr. Bailey's motion an amendment that the assessors be elected by one or more joint resolutions of the General Assembly.

Mr. Bailey's amendment was that the assessors be chosen by the people.

The bull, as it came from the ilouse, provided that these assessors should be appointed by the Auditor of Public Ageounts.

Mr. Bailey (Republican) spoke at length in support of his motion, contending that it was right and proper that these officers pointed by the Anditor of Public Ascounts.

Mr. Bailey (Republican) spoke a' length in support of his motion, contending that it was right and proper that these officers should be elected by the people. He mantained that the lands in the Southwest were assessed as high as in fairness they should be. Talking about market facilities in the Southwest, he said that if a man wants to ship his cattle to Lynchburg or Norfolk, when he got to Roanoke city he had to buy a ticket for himself; but if he desired to ship to Philadelphia he could get a free pass, and goes along to attend his cattle without cost. Mr. Bailey not only opposed the bill as framed, but took ground against
Mr. Atkinson's amendment that the General Assembly should elect the assessors.
He thought the appointments could better be made by the county courts, or the boards of supervisors, or commissioners of the revenue, than by the Auditor of Public Accounts, but his chief aim was to have them elected by the people.

Hers the joint order was announced.

Here the joint order was announced. ELECTION OF ANOTHER JUDGE.

Scattering.

THE REASESSMENT BILL, AGAIN.

Mr. Mereduth advocated the appointment of the assessors by the Auditor. He thought it the best arrangement possible to be made. He criticized, but not unkindly, the course of Mr. Bailey, who supported here that most iniquitous measure the commissioner-of-land-sales bill—a chief purpose of which was to establish Mahone newspapers all over the State. That bill proposed the appointment of commissioners of sales by the Governor, and that party also proposed to have all the commissioners in chancery for the circuit courts appointed by the Governor. pose of which was to establish Mahone newspapers all over the State. That bill proposed the appointment of commissioners of sales by the Governor, and that party also proposed to have all the commissioners in chancery for the circuit courts appointed by the Governor.

Mr. Bailey said that he never heard of that before. There was no such bill as far as he knew.

The state of the most economically administered that ever assembled within the walls of the capitol.

of power, we made our fight last fall and won.
Upon the whole, Mr. Wingfield thought it best to adhere to the old law; to give the appointment to the county judges.
Mr. Powell favored Mr. Bailey's amend-election of judges for Hanover and Augusta counties, had arrived.

The Senate was informed of this fact. The election of judge of Hanover was post-poned. John W. Stout, of Augusta, was elected judge of Augusta.

THE ASYLUM BILL AGAIN. The consideration of this bill was again ment.

M. Turner spoke for his plan.

Mr. Heaton doubted the policy of giving this power to the Auditor. He is not in a position to procure the best men. Mr. Heaton wanted to give the appointment wholly in the hands of the board of supervisors. He didn't want the county-court judges to have anything to do with it. What is wanted in this state is not so much a high assessment as a uniform assessment. The consideration of this bill was again resumed.

Mr. Smith said he repelled the accusation that this Legislature had been extravagant in spending the money of the people. He did not propose to be defensive, but aggressive. The Legislature had been economical. He could not recall a vote be had cast that be would not represent. He could not represent a people that would not noursh institutions of learning and foster those of charity. The lunaties at the Central Asylum would be without a place of refuge on the 1st of January, and there must be some money given for their maintenance, but he could not go to the extent named in the bill of particulars. A tramway could be built for $9,300, the amount named in the statement as necessary to construct a road from Petersburg to the asyjudges to have anything to do with it. What is wanted in this state is not so much a high assessment as a uniform assessment. The judges of the county court may be very able men, but they are not the businessment that the supervisors are supposed to be. The supervisors should make the appointments, and the appeals from the assessors should be to them.

Mr. Bailey, believing that his amendment would be defeated, felt that he ought to go to the next plan, and that he considered Mr. Heaton's to be.

Mr. Atkinson's amendment was rejected. Mr. Komer moved to amend so that the appointments be made by the board of supervisors in the county and the corporation courts of the cities.

Mr. Heaton wanted the appointments made in towns and cities by the trustees or city councils.

On metion of Mr. Lovenstein the amendment of Mr. Koiner was amended to give the appointment in Richmond city to the circuit judge instead of to the hustings (corporation) judge.

Then Mr. Koiner's amendment was amended by Mr. Heaton's anendment.

The upshot of it all was that the Senate, by a great majority, voiced that in the county to the supervisors, in the towns the frustees.

struct a road from Petersburg to the asylum.

Mr. Dunn moved to amend by striking out $30,000 and inserting $20,000.

Mr. Pollard moved as a substitute to strike out $20,000 and inserting $20,000.

Mr. Pollard's motion was lost, and the vote recurring on Mr. Dunn's amendment, by a rising vote it was adopted.

Mr. Green, of Stafford, said he had waited for some one to repel the charges made by Speaker Stuart about the expenses of the Legislature. He was sorry that he had taken occasion to talk as he did about a bill of humanity, and for himself he did not think the statement true.

Mr. Stuart said he did not hear Mr. Green, but he had heard him so often he could tell what he had said. He did not wish to make a pablic speech; he only wanted to say that the expenses of the Legislature would not exceed $92,000, the newstances to the contrary notwithstanding.

Mr. Grattan offered the following amendment, which passed:

Provided that no part of this sum shall.

by a great majority, voted that in the coun-ty the supervisors, in the towns the frustees, and in the cities the councils should make and in the clies in councils the appointments.

Then, so that they might reshape the bill, it was, on motion of Mr. Wickham, recommitted to the Committee on Finance, and ordered to be printed, with the numerous amendments adopted. nent, which passed:
Provided that no part of this sum shall be used for current expenses of the asy-lum, but only for the turniture and renairs and permanent improvement necessary. The bill was passed to its engrossment

The amended Riddberger bill from the Heuse was taken up. Mr. Wickham having offered a substitute (published in this pa-per Sunday). Mr. Heaton spoke at some length, and at 3 P. M. gave way to a moand third reading. He was a delegate to the Democratic Congressional Convention beld at Ashland a few years ago, and placed in nomination Captain Frank W. Winston in a speech which excited great admiration. About three years ago he removed to Kansas City, and became connected with a large wholesale house there. The particulars of his death have not yet reached this city, but it is supposed he was in St. Louis on business when death occurred. Deceased had a bright nand and winning disposition, and was a good man and very popular indeed with sil who knew him. LICENSE TAXES.

The license law, passed in March last, taxed the keeper of an eating-house twenty-five dollars specifically, and required him to pay an additional sum of 8 per centum on the annual rental value of not less than one thousand dollars per annum. A day or two ago a bill was introduced amending the lax law in this respect and others. Mr. Evans, of Ruchmond, tried to have stricken out all that portion of the law putting a tax on the annual rental value of the eating-house, and while he did not succeed in whole, he did succeed in having the bill so amended as to reduce this additional tax on the eating-house-keeper so that no tax will be charged on the annual rental value unless the annual rental exceeds one hundred dollars. As amended the bill was passed to its third reading and engrossment. The Planters and Mechanics Bank.

A DULL AND LOOSE GAME. The Virginias Meet With Defent Again at the Hands of the Baitimores.

[Special telegram to the Dispatch.]

Baltinors. Mp., August 20.—A second victory was gained by the Baitimore Club to-day by defeating the Virginia Club at Oriole Park by the score of 9 to 1. The game was decidedly duil, and loose playing by both clubs were the predominant features. As Goldsmith, the home-team's new pitcher, stepped into the pitcher's box he was loudly applauded. He is a fine figure and in all critical pomts is very cool. His pitching was a feature of the game, and his delivery is swift and peculiar, and with but very little exertion. Trott caught a fair game, considering that he had a new and powerful man to catch. Meegan, for the visitors, did not do well. He exerts himself too much in his delivery; and as the day was a scorcher in the field, he showed signs of fatigue before the game was ended. The errors on both sides were in most cases excusable. To play ball with the thermometer at 35° in the shade is hard work. The feature of the game was Maccullar's brilliant with the thermometer.
